IN preparing the following records of the Dolbeare family, I have been greatly assisted by the researches in the Boston records, of Mr. George D. Dimon, of Utica, and of his brother, Theodore, now deceased, in other directions. I am also indebted to Mr. E. D. Harris for entirely new information afforded by his paper. In August, 1890, I visited Hereford Cathedral and obtained the rubbing from the Brass of Sir Richard, a photograph of which is shown in this pamphlet, and also the extracts from the Cathedral records. I had intended to include in this account a statement of all the descendants of George Dolbeare, but to make it complete and satisfactory would require more time and labor than I can devote to it.

THE DOLBEARE FAMILY.

EDMUND DOLBEARE came to this country with his wife and two sons, Joseph and John (then nine years of age), from Ashburton, in Devonshire, England, about the year 1678. He was a pewterer, and had the Pewterer's Arms, which occupation he undoubtedly followed in Ashburton, as this town was one of the "Stannin" towns in which were held the "Tin Parliaments," for deciding all questions connected with the tin mining of the district. Both these sons, Joseph and John, were brought up in their father's business, which was established in Boston, and in it afterward John Dolbeare acquired a large fortune amounting to £57,000, exclusive of household goods, as is shown in the inventory elsewhere printed. The inventory includes 414 ounces of coined silver and $37\frac{1}{2}$ ounces of gold in pistoles, which were doubtless for use in the trade, and 644 ounces household plate. He had also a pew in the Old South Church, and a pew in the Old Brick Meeting House.

JOHN DOLBEARE of Boston, some of whose descendants, through his youngest son, George Dolbeare, are named elsewhere herein, was undoubtedly of the family of De La Barre, whose name appears in "Hollingsheads' Ancient Chronicle" among those who came over with William the Conqueror into England. Many facts tend to establish the identity of the families, among which are the changes of the name, the records of Hereford Cathedral, the arms which John Dolbeare used, and the traditions of the family. There were six families of this name using the coat of arms described as follows: "Az a band or, cotised or, between six martlets of the second. Crest, out of a ducal coronet or, a plume of feathers, party per pale or and az."

In the inventory of John Dolbeare, elsewhere printed, the family arms and the pewterers' and braziers' arms are included, and the pieces of silver which have come down from his estate to the present generation are engraved with the "plume of feathers" and other insignia of the arms above described. The Gloucestershire family is the one from which it is probable that John Dolbeare was descended.

The name is entered on the records of Hereford Cathedral as "De la Barr," and "Delabarre" on the brass of Richard De la Barr ob 1386, as Sir R. Dolbeare in 1514, and Sir Richard Delabere on the brass of that date. These records appear herein. In "Bigland's Gloucestershire," Volume I, page 312, is an engraving of a very curious portrait, described as being in the possession of John de la Bere, Esq., at Cheltenham, of Sir Richard de la Bere, Knight Banneret, receiving his cognizance from Edward the Black Prince. This distinguished honor was conferred on Sir Richard on account of his having rescued the Prince from imminent danger at the battle of Cressy, 1346, and it is a received tradition that the painting is of nearly equal antiquity. Sir Richard died about 1382.

“Southam House, about two miles from Cheltenham, in the Parish of Bishop’s Cleeve, is a venerable and far-famed mansion, now the property of Thomas Bagshott de la Bere, Esq., whose father William Bagshott of Prestbury assumed the name ‘de la Bere’ in pursuance of the will of his uncle Kynard de la Bere, Esq., who, dying without issue in the year 1735, bequeathed to him this estate. The accurate Leland mentions this house as built by Sir John Huddleston at the time when he made his survey by command of Henry the Eighth, and it yet retains as much or more, perhaps, of its original form as any other domestic building in England of that era. The place seems to have been in possession of Kynard de la Bere in 1601.”

Baedeker (1890) mentions Southam de la Bere as an old mansion house of the fifteenth century and a place of interest.

In the church at Bishop’s Cleeve there is a “Sumptuous mural and altar monument to the memory of Richard de la Bere, Esq., of Southam, and his lady. The effigy of the former is displayed in a serjeant’s habit, the latter in the dress of the times. Sir Richard died in 1635.

FROM THE RECORDS IN HEREFORD CATHEDRAL.

“On the floor of the S. E. Transept is the nearly perfect brass of Sir R. Dolbeare Knight, 1514, and his two wives, the first with five children, and the second with sixteen.”

The names on the partially erased plate beneath the figures are Thomas, George, Sibill and Anne.

The town records of Boston state that John Dolbeare was married to Sarah Comer, by Mr. Cotton Mather, June 9, 1698. According to the same records their children were:

- I. John born 29 July, 1699.
- II. John “ 25 April, 1702.
- III. James “ 18 October, 1705.
- IV. Samuel “ 17 May, 1707.
- V. Benjamin “ 4 December, 1708.
- VI. Mary “ 24 May, 1710.

- VIII. Sarah “ 25 July, 1712.
- IX. David “ 5 June, 1713.
- X. George “ 1 June, 1715.

All of the above named children are mentioned in the wills of John and Sarah Dolbeare, excepting the first two named John and one Benjamin. The daughter, Sarah, married William Clarke, physician, and Mary married Bernard Townsend, Esq.

THE DOLBEARES OF BOSTON.

By EDWARD DOUBLEDAY HARRIS, Esq., of New York City.

The writer has in his possession several memorandum books and files of business papers formerly belonging to three Boston merchants, John Dolbeare, his son Benjamin and Benjamin's son John. Among them, in the handwriting of Benjamin Dolbeare, is a copy of a letter written to John Dolbeare, ironmonger, of Ashburton, England, which throws some light on the early history of the family here. It runs as follows:

Boston, New England, 28th August, 1772.

Mr. Benjⁿ Dolbeare, at Ashburton in O. Eng.

Sir, I Have lately been informed by one Mr Row, who lives about 20 miles from your Town, that you were alive & well when he left home, & you being the only relation that I have heard anything of in England, am desirous of having a Correspondence with you if it will be agreeable to you. Therefore take this opportunity to acquaint you as far as I know, how the relationship came about, Viz. my late father Mr John Dolbeare came from Ashburton into this Country with my Grandfather Mr Edmund Dolbeare, my Grandmother, & uncle Joseph, about the year 1664, my father and uncle Joseph served their times with my Grandfather to the pewterers Trade, in which business my father set up, & added to it the Ironmongry Trade, both which he carried on to the year 1740, when he died in about the 76th year of his age & left nine children, seven sons & two Daughters, all of whom are dead except myself & a younger brother & sister, the one a Widow aged 60, the other a widower aged 59 years. I am sixty one years of age, keep the same shop & carry on the same business my father did. My Grandmother died a few years after she came over here, and my Grandfather Married again, by his last wife he had two sons & one daughter who have all been married, the oldest, a son, has been dead some years, the other son is about 70 & the daughter ab. 65 years of Age, her husband lately died, her Brother has had two wives, by the first he had many Children & two by his last. His Wife & he are poor & in the alms-House in this Town, of which I have the honor of being one of the overseers. When my Grandfather died I know not, it being before I was born. My father was but Nine years old when he came into this Country. My mother died about the year 1745 in about the 70th year of her age. My Brother James who was at Ashburton to visit his relations there in the year 1738 (when I suppose you saw him there) for I understand you are about 60 yrs of Age, he died in the year 1743 in the 37th year of his age, he gave an acct of our relations there & that there was none of y^t name but what were related to us. Thus I have given you as full an accot of my fathers family in this Country as I can recollect, & should be glad of an accot of our family remaining with you, if it be agreeable to you to send one.

I now proceed to give you an accot of my own family Viz^t I have had two wives, by the first I had eleven children of which only four are living, whose names are Thomas, Sarah, Grizzel & John, the first is about 24 years of age a merchant at Kingston in Jamaica, the second about 23 married to a merchant in this Town, she has one child, a Girl of her name, the 3^d about 21 a single woman & the last about 20 years of age, my apprentice; by the last wife I have no children. If you think it worth your while to write to me at any time, direct to Benjamin Dolbeare, Merc^t in Boston, New England & it will come safe to hand. I wish you health & prosperity & am

Y^r unknown kinsman

BENJAMIN DOLBEARE.

Mem^o Ashburton is in the County of Devon, abt 20 Miles from Plymouth & Exeter. I Rec.['] a letter from him & his Name is John instead of Benja.

The reply has not been found.

In one of the memorandum books, in the handwriting of the younger John Dolbeare, is the following record, evidently a copy from an older one which, as yet, has not come to light in the search:

It is apparent, from a comparison of this record with the letter to the English Dolbeare, that its writer was in error as to the date of his grandfather's coming to Boston; it was doubtless later than 1664.

On another page of the same memorandum book and in the same handwriting is the following :

Jn^o Dolbeare's Tomb N^o 50 in the Common burial ground built 1725.

Bury'd in it—

Preserved among the business papers is the title page of a bible (printed in London by John Baskett, MDCCXXXV,) on the blank side of which is written the following :

I, Benjamin Dolbeare was born the 24 July 1711.

My Wife Hannah whose maiden name was Vincent, was born the 3 May 1712, to whom I was married by the Rev^d Mr Commissary Roger Price the 18th June 1741.

* * * * *

The name of Edmund¹ Dolbeare's first wife, who accompanied him to Boston, does not appear; that of his second was Sarah, and the children born of this marriage in Boston were Elizabeth, Martha, and David. John,² the elder, who followed his father's business, married Sarah Comer. His brother Joseph² married Hannah, a niece of Nathaniel Norder of Marblehead; he had at least two children, Joseph and Edmund.

Of the large family born to John² and Sarah Dolbeare, the papers make occasional mention. Thomas³ mar. wife Sarah, and was of Dorchester. James³ married, went abroad, and apparently had good reasons for the divorce suit which he instituted. Samuel³ and David,³ marrying to the displeasure of their father, were, by his will, disinherited. Mary³ married Bernard Townsend. Sarah³ married William Clarke, a physician. George³ became the inheritor of estates purchased by his father in Colchester, Conn^t., and his descendants in the male line were there as late as about 1800.

George Dolbeare, the youngest child of John Dolbeare of Boston, was born June 1, 1715. He settled in Colchester, Conn., on a large farm which was purchased by his father, and which he afterwards inherited. Lorenzo Dow, who married a granddaughter of George Dolbeare, gives this account of the manner in which the land in Colchester was acquired.

“In 1698 one of the established ministers preached an election sermon for which he was to have 200 acres of land bounded by water, be the same more or less, that is 1500 acres; which location was made between Oxboro Pond and Bozrah Lake and being divided betwixt two clergymen, the preacher kept the south half and sold it to one Livingstone, whose widow sold it to James Harris, the land speculator, who sold it to John Dolbeare of Boston, whose son, George, came into possession by heirship. This George was considered a great man in his day, having four saw mills and much land.”

Mr. Dow also mentions having stood, with his wife Lucy in Boston, by the family vault of her great-grandfather, which was then 100 years old by the date thereon engraved. “JOHN DOLBEARE, 1725.” (See paper by E. D. Harris.)

George Dolbeare married Mary Sherwood of Fairfield, Conn., whose family lived at a place called Toilsome Hill, and where they owned large and valuable tracts of land. Her ancestor, Thomas Sherwood, came from Ipswich, in England, in 1634, and first settled in Massachusetts, removing to Fairfield about 1650.

Thomas Sherwood m. 2^d Mary —, and by her had six children. Matthew his 2^d son, known as Capt. Matthew S., died October 26, 1715, at Stratfield, Conn., in his 72^d yr. Capt. Matthew married, as his 2^d wife, Mary Fitch, d. of Thomas Fitch of Norwalk, Conn., and had by her six children, of whom Mary died Sept. 16, 1752, at Montville, Conn. This Mary Sherwood m., 1st, Captain Daniel Fitch, son of Rev. James and Priscilla (Mason) Fitch of Norwich, Conn., and 2^d, Joseph Bradford, son of Major William Bradford and grandson of Gov. William Bradford, by whom she had one child, John Bradford, born May 20, 1717, at Mohegan, and died March 10, 1787, at Montville.

Samuel Sherwood, son of Capt. Matthew, above, m. Rebecca Burr, dau. of Nathaniel and Sarah (Ward) Burr, November 30, 1704. Their children were John, Nathaniel, Sarah, MARY m. GEORGE DOLBEARE, Abigail, Rebecca, Esther, THOMAS m. ANNA BURR, and Andrew. Thomas Sherwood and Anna Burr, above named, were the grandparents of Thomas Burr Osborne.

Estate of George Dolbeare.

John Dolbeare, of Colchester, and William Avery, of Groton, son and son-in-law of George Dolbeare, were appointed administrators on his estate by the Probate Court of New London, April 14, 1772. The inventory of his estate amounted to £9032, appraised by William Hillhouse and John Bradford. It included many articles of wearing apparel and ornament, indicating the affluence of the owner, among them, silver spurs, silver shoe, knee and garter buckles, silver hilted sword, gold sleeve buttons, an English gun with its equipments, 158 oz. of plate valued at £85, a great deal of household furniture, glass and china, among others eighteen blue and white Delft plates, "PICTURES OF MR. JOHN DOLBEARE AND SARAH, HIS WIFE, with two large gilt frames." (This verifies the portraits in the possession of the Misses Lockwood.) The value of the household effects was between £400 and £500; also one negro, Cato, £60; negro girl, Dorcas, £65; negro girl, Miriam, £45.

The names of his children among whom the estate of Geo. Dolbeare was distributed, are as stated elsewhere herein.)

THE household plate was appraised in the inventory of Sarah, wife of John Dolbeare, of Boston, at £1,127. Many pieces of this plate came into the possession of the descendants of George Dolbeare, of Montville, and though widely scattered among numerous heirs, some of these still remain in the family. The Misses Lockwood, of New London, have a considerable collection of Dolbeare silver, and others one or more pieces. The prints on the following pages represent the devices engraved on five pieces of silver, as indicated.

Abigail Dolbeare, born July 31, 1743, and married Capt. Elisha Hinman of New London. Their marriage is thus noticed in the Philadelphia Post of April 8, 1777. "Married at New London by the Rev. Mr. Jewett, Elisha Hinman, Esq., Commander of the Alfred, Frigate, in the service of the United States, to Miss Abigail Dolebere, daughter of George Dolebere, Esq., of that place, an accomplished young lady of fortune." The United Service Review for November 1889, in a brief sketch of Capt. Hinman says: "His wife, a native of New London, was one of the most beautiful and accomplished ladies of the day." A portrait of her, copied from a miniature from life, is in the possession of her great-grandson, Arthur D. Osborne of New Haven. A very interesting and valuable picture by Huntington, representing her in the act of leveling a musket from a window of her house in New London at Benedict Arnold, when he entered that place at the head of the British troops, is owned by her grandson, Thomas D. Day, of New York.

The children of Elisha Hinman and Abigail Dolbeare were, Ann, who married first Thomas Davis and second Alexander Cyrus Kellogg, and died without issue at Fairfield, Conn., Sept. 23, 1878, in her ninety-seventh year; Mary Sherwood, who married Ebenezer Dimon of Fairfield (a full account of the Dimon descendants is given in the "Dimon Gen., by E. R. Dimond," and "Brief Memorials," by A. D. O.); Elisha, who died without issue; and Hannah, who married James Day and had four children, viz: James Ingersoll Day, who settled in New Orleans and married Eliza Armitage of that city; Abigail Hinman Day, who married John P. The other daughters were Julia Hyde Butler, who became by marriage Mrs. Clapp; Mary Dolbeare Butler (Mrs. Devereux); and Elizabeth, unmarried.
